Sometimes, good fences can make good neighbours. If, that is, those neighbours agree to co-operate in building that fence, agree that its presence is either necessary or of no consequence to them. However, fences can also make truly terrible neighbours, and it is this that we must not forget. What frustrates the narrator more than anything is not the wall itself, but his neighbour's unquestioning veneration for his father's saying that 'good fences make good neighbours.' ('He moves ...
